

AdLitteram: An English Journal of International Literari

(The Most Trusted: The Most Excellent: The Most Onerous)

Ad Litteram is a non-profit, international, double-blind, peer reviewed, referred, open access, E-journal. The greatest strength of the journal is its team which is supercalifragilisticexpialidocious. The journal is a platform where the possibility of bringing the intrinsic reverberations extracting its throbs from the milieu all around to the extent of maximum potency is uncompromisingly materialized. The journal gives an open firmament to the ideational maxims feasible to uplift the literary sensibility and anthropological acumen of the world we inhabit and endeavor at cementing the unflinching edifice for it. The journal, thus, publishes critically examined and scholarly wrought out writings, interviews, book reviews on literatures emerged or emerging from across the globe. The journal also keeps some of the research articles (accessed from internet) having consonance with the theme of the annum on its page for scholars to have access for the purpose of designing their research output.

Ad Litteram is an annual online journal without any print form. The language of publication is English. The journal does not charge any processing fee for publishing the aforementioned. The quality consciousness is of the prime significance this journal takes supremely cognizance of and works on fully open access philosophy.